Builders Association Members Create a Measurable Difference

“If you’re considering having a new home built or remodeling your current home, be sure to call a professional builder who is part of the Builders Association of Kosciusko-Fulton Counties . . .

Our builder members adhere to a strict code of ethics and the Indiana Quality Association Builder Standards (QABS). The QABS provide new homebuyers and remodeling homeowners a way to measure the quality of the project against an industry approved set of standards. The Standards are a series of performance standards that the member builders and the homeowners can use to communicate and understand each other’s expectations regarding the building or remodeling project. The Standards are printed in an easy-to-read manual that is given to you by your builder or remodeler when you sign a contract. The manual includes explanations of the builder’s responsibilities and the homeowner’s responsibilities.

The Quality Assurance Builder Standards provide you with the confidence that professionals in the industry are handling your project.

Make sure your builder or remodeler is a member of the Builders Association of Kosciusko-Fulton Counties — where the Quality Standards are set.”
